Dedication

We dedicate this 1958 issue

to MR. MELVIN ENTIN,

inspiring and able coach and teacher.

Advisors

MRS. DORIS D. BRUCE

MRS. EDITH G. DIAS

We gratefully dedicate this page to the advisors who have guided the destinies of our class during our high school years. Their patience, industry, and understanding have contributed much to the welfare and success of the Class of 1958.

Foreword

In choosing the theme for the 1953 HUTTLESTONIAN, the yearbook staff considered and reconsidered for many long hours the several possible choices. We finally decided upon athletics, for a number of reasons.

First, athletics play a large part in high school education, because athletics are a source of recreation, as well as of physical development. Second, a good deal of the fun of being a high school student is cheering at the games, sharing a victory with the team, or watching the grimy, mud-spattered football team trudge, victorious, from the field. Third, we believe that Fairhaven High School upholds the ancient Greek principle of "a sound mind in a sound body" by placing stress on participation in physical education, in addition to the all-important academic pursuits.

Needless to say, in dedicating the 1958 HUTTLESTONIAN, we could think of no more appropriate or deserving person than Mr. Melvin Entin, who, as head of the Athletic Department of Fairhaven High for many years, has been a source of inspiration and enormous help to both athletes and students.

We hope that our yearbook, in emphasizing athletics, does not neglect the academic side of our high school careers, for in these days when our country finds herself in an intellectual and scientific race with the other nations of the world, education is of vital importance to each of us, if we are to keep America strong.

Consequently, then, the aim of the 1958 HUTTLESTONIAN is to give a complete and interesting depiction of daily life at Fairhaven High School.

Preface

A BALLAD FOR '58

(With apologies to "Casey at the Bat")

It looked extremely rocky for us Freshmen on that day
Beginning tasks of learning, with just four years to play
That game of knowledge which it seemed we'd never win,
With all the homework, themes, and rules to become expert in.

A straggling few got up to go, leaving there the rest
To carry high that torch of hope with fortitude and zest.
For thus we thought: if other groups have brought to our school fame,
Surely, good old '58 could easily do the same.

Thus onward we fought, in our mind all the plays —
Integrity, health, and ambition-filled days;
And we soon found much fun in all that we struck —
New friends, sports, dances — we surely had luck.

Then came Senior year, the last spurt in the game,
With thoughts of tomorrow — misfortune or fame.
But we shall not strike out in the great game of life;
With the knowledge we've gained, we can win any strife.

So these gilded pages where our brief four years dwell
Shall capture our joys and our sorrows as well.
Whose fine golden hours which have now slipped away
Shall guide us through life with success and fair play.

Therefore, here in June when the sun shines so bright,
Where the orchestra's playing and where hearts are light,
And where friendly people their good wishes shout,
To that world strange and beckoning, '58 now moves out.

OFFICE OF THE PRINCIPAL

To the Class of 1958:

As you reach the end of your high school course, I commend you for all the good things you have done and wish you well as you enter the next phase of your life.

You have chosen sports as the theme of your yearbook. When we think of sports, we call to mind such words as preparation, competition, skill, enthusiasm, and fair play. We expect our athletes to practice before each contest and to compete to the best of their ability, always remembering the rules of the game and the demands of sportsmanship.

Thousands of young people like you have received their diplomas here and have gone on to college, to employment, and to take their places in home and community. They have used their preparation to good advantage. They have met competition without flinching. They have attacked the task at hand with vigor and intelligence. They have found that sports and life have some things in common.

As you join these alumni, I am sure you too will find the lessons you have learned here to be of value and we look to you to achieve success in the finest sense of that word.

Sincerely,

THE CASE OF THE MISSING MANTLE

(The following story is fiction. Any relation to persons living or dead is purely on purpose.)

This is the city, Fairhaven, Massachusetts. The date, June 5, 1958. My name is Sherlock Saber, private investigator.

It began as a routine day. I arrived at my office, the basement of Jack's Variety, at 8:00 a.m. As I opened the door, wisps of cigarette smoke and soft strains of rock 'n' roll music were sifting through the ventilator. Now and then, petite pieces of plaster dropped to the dusty desk.

At 8:30 a.m., I detected a faint ringing sound. After a brief investigation, I discovered it to be the telephone. It had been filed under "T" in the filing cabinet. Picking up the receiver, I said smoothly, "Sherlock Saber speaking."

Over a background of boisterous babbling came this urgent message: "This is Energetic Elaine Stening! President of the Fairhaven High Junior Class! We need your help! Please meet me in Room 4 immediately"!

"I'll be right over," I replied. Tossing the phone back into the filing cabinet, I stumbled up the stairs and through the door. (I must here explain that the termites had saved me the trouble of opening it.)

Walking quickly across the street, I suavely dodged a car, which rammed into the monument, killing 96 people. (They were piled 7 deep.) I then entered the massive portals of the High School. Greeted by an attractive blonde, who introduced herself as Energetic Elaine, I was ushered into Room 4. Once uncomfortably seated in a rather rickety chair, I proceeded to interrogate my client. Her story was as follows:

"Every year at this time, it is traditional for the Senior mantle to be handed from the Graduating Class to the new Senior Class. However, during one of our rehearsals, we discovered that it had disappeared. It is imperative that we have the mantle by tomorrow, or we won't be Seniors."

At this crucial point, the narrative was interrupted by the appearance of Mrs. Cromie, the Junior Class advisor. Following her suggestion, I proceeded to Room 15, the scene of the crime, where I commenced my investigation. The sole occupant of the room was a pert, pretty girl, whom I knew to be Animated Andrea Kucharsky.

"I understand that this is the room from which the Senior mantle disappeared."

"Yes, she replied. "It is usually kept on the top shelf of that closet."

Opening the door that she had indicated with her index finger, I nonchalantly brushed aside the three tarantulas that were swinging gaily from their cobwebs. I then elevated myself with the aid of a chair, and my gaze gradually penetrated the impenetrable atmosphere. The only clue was a big book about basketball, which I found in place of the missing mantle.

While pondering the problem of following up this current condemning clue, my attention was diverted by the appearance of two towering boys. After inquiring, I was informed that I was speaking to Rough Richie Holt and Frustrated Freddy Freitas, both outstanding athletes. On questioning them about the ownership of the valuable volume, I learned that it had been seen in the possession of Dashing David Knox.

In order to save time, I slid sophisticatedly down the bannister and entered Room 7. Encountering the subject of my search, I found him engaged in conversation with Cousy Carl Maxfield. "Pardon me, young man, is this your book?"

Dashing Dave examined the book and replied, "No, I got it from Cousy Carl."

Here Cousy Carl interrupted and informed me, "I got it from Cool Coach Entin."

"But I gave it to Atomic Al Dellecese," retorted Dashing Dave helpfully.

During the course of this confusing conversation, I had been busily jotting down voluminous notes. With these in hand, I thanked Dashing Dave and Cousy Carl, and began my pursuit of Atomic Al.

Upon leaving Room 7, I bumped into two sweet students, Bewitching Betty Doucette and Popular Polly Maxfield. After helping them up, I took advantage of my new acquaintances by inquiring, "Where is he?"

Bewitching Betty looked bewildered. "Who?" she asked.

I quickly consulted my notes and a half hour later replied, "Atomic Al."

"Oh, he's in the gym with Hot-Rod Ray Arruda," said Popular Polly.

I continued my quest by descending to the gym, where I spied my suspect. As my left eye scanned the dim gym for witnesses, my right eye suddenly caught a glimpse of flying blond hair. It was Be-Bop Berta Norlander; her pony-tail had come loose. She and Merry Marilyn Gardner, armed with tennis rackets, were darting toward the door. I interrupted their flight by shutting it. This was a tragic mistake, as they soon became part of the woodwork. Carefully peeling them from the paint, I propped them against a partition. With these girls to witness the conversation, I called Atomic Al and Hot-Rod Ray.

"I understand that this book was last seen in your possession," I said to Atomic Al. "Tell me how it got into the closet in Room 15."

His innocent expression didn't fool me, and I intently awaited his flimsy excuse.

"Oh, that's the book I left in Mrs. Noyer's study hall. She told me that she put it in the closet in Room 15, where it would be safe from bookworms' replied Atomic Al.

Deeply dismayed that my only clue had gone 'poof', I turned my thoughts from this baffling mystery to my stomach, which by now was sending signals for S. O. S. (Salami On Sunbeam). With this in mind, I waylaid Bachelor Brad Mandell and Delinquent Dexter Eldridge, two boys who hail from Mattapoisett.

(Aside, Delinq to Bach) "Hey Bach, who dat man?"

(Bach to Delinq) "That's Snoopy Sherlock Saber, the detective. He's supposed to find the missing mantle. Let's give the old boy a clue."

"Aren't you Snoop . . . I mean Sherlock Saber, the detective?" Bachelor Brad inquired.

"Yes, that's right," I admitted proudly. "I'm looking for the cafeteria."

(Aside, Bach to Delinq) "Some detective, he can't even find the cafeteria."

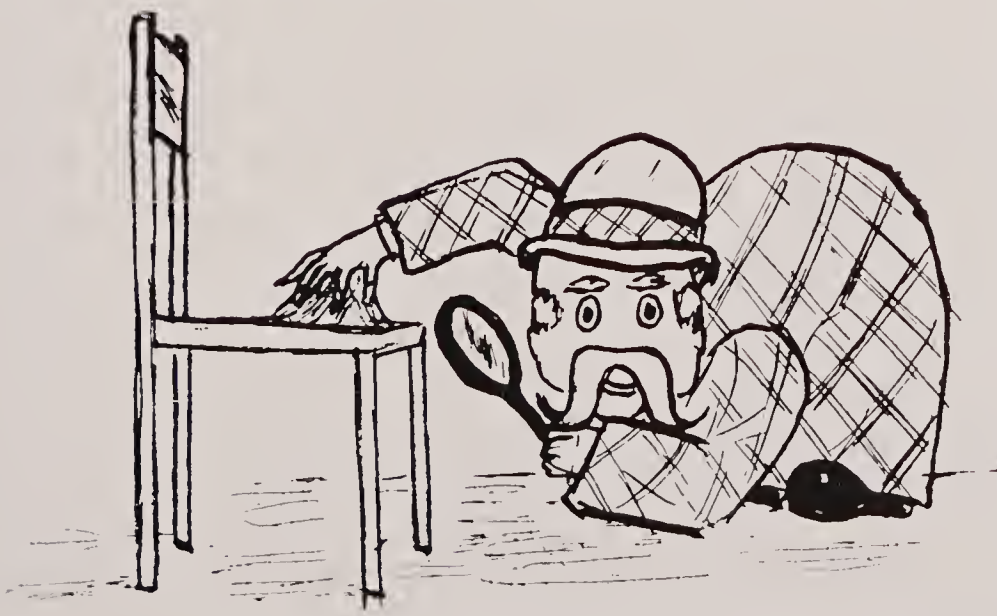

"If you have a minute," said Delinq, "maybe we can give you a clue about the missing mantle."

This unexpected prospect of a new lead quickly blotted out the S. O. S.

"Yes," Bach continued. "Why don't you look in the Larch Avenue Auditorium? That's where the Junior Day exercises are held. Maybe someone brought it over there."

Thanking the boys for their timely tip, I promptly renewed my investigation, being delayed for only an instant when some prankster turned off the lights in the tunnel.

Once in that part of the building fondly referred to as the Addition, I was startled by two girls speeding suspiciously down the corridor. Both were carrying long leather cases which appeared to contain machine guns. However, as soon as I had questioned Lively Leigh Richards and Ironic Ilona Wesoly, I learned that their cases merely contained violins. This chance meeting was not wasted, nevertheless, as the girls graciously guided me to the auditorium.

I began making a thorough search of the hall. This proved quite discouraging, as all I found were 18 wads of gum plastered to the bottoms of chairs, 6 intimate notes and 12 other miscellaneous pieces of paper, 1 slightly smashed cake of rosin, and 8 bent bobby pins. As I mounted the stage, I noticed that the curtain concealed the door. Without realizing the significance of my action, I opened it. Apparently it wasn't supposed to be opened, as a stack of folded chairs, which had been piled in back of the door, crashed to the floor. Unfortunately, a few never reached the floor. While clambering out from under them, I suddenly saw it. The search was over.

After I had ambled across the stage, slid down the stairs, crossed the corridor, stumbled down the stairs, torn through the tunnel, jumped through the gym, ascended the stairs, run through Room 8, and hurried down the hall, I finally rushed into Room 4. Here I was fortunate enough to find both Mrs. Cromie and Energetic Elaine.

"I have some good news for you," I announced calmly. "If you leave the presentation of the mantle until the end of your program, I can guarantee that the mantle will be there."

"Why that's wonderful!" Energetic Elaine exclaimed.

"Yes," agreed Mrs. Cromie, "but where is it?"

"Ah! Its whereabouts will be revealed tomorrow at the assembly," I informed her. "I shall be here to make sure of that."

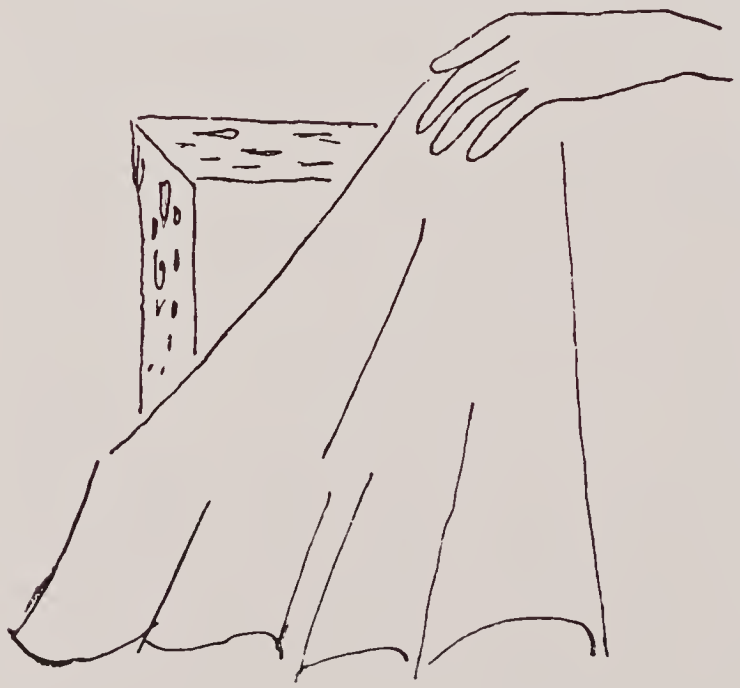

Bidding the ladies good-bye, I then made my departure.

The next day, I arrived early to check on the mantle. Since it was just as I had left it, I sat down to enjoy the assembly.

The program progressed perfectly, until only two events remained: the presentation of the portrait, which the Senior Class was giving to the school, and, of course, the presentation of the Senior mantle.

Brilliant Barry Behn, president of the Senior Class, and Mr. Downing, principal of the High School, were on the stage. Between them was a table, on which stood an object covered with a dark blue cloth.

"On behalf of the Class of 1958," said Brilliant Barry, "I should like to present you with this portrait of Henry Huttleston Rogers, painted by two Senior artists, who wish to remain anonymous."

As he spoke these words, he wisked the cloth from the portrait. All eyes in the auditorium were fixed upon the stage. They were not looking at Mr. Downing, nor Brilliant Barry, nor even the newly unveiled portrait, but at the dark blue cloth - the missing Senior mantle.

Class History

As all teams are at one time young and inexperienced, so the class of 1958 prepared to face the challenging but rewarding years before it.

When our class entered its freshman year, it was led by Rosemary Murphy, Sandra Burgess, Florence Majocka, and Barry Behn. Under the capable coaching of Mr. Bradford G. Pierce, we decided to sell class pins as our project, which proved to be a profitable undertaking. To celebrate the success of this first quarter of the exciting game, we held a rally, The Winter Wonderland.

Anxious to resume play, we again chose Rosemary Murphy to lead our team through a victorious second quarter. She was supported by Florence Jenney, Florence Majocka, and Ellen Mahoney. The "Blue Mentor," Mrs. Edith Dias, welcomed the Mattapoisett supplementary forces, who joined with us to sell wrapping paper. With the assistance of the Freshman Team, we held the very successful Daisy Mae Dance. As this quarter came to a close, "Snooky" Downing was chosen to represent our team on the cheering squad.

Refreshed from the half, we entered the third quarter with eager anticipation. This year, coached by Mrs. Doris D. Bruce, we elected Rosemary Collins our leader, assisted by Rosemary Murphy, Ellen Mahoney, and Ruth Downing. One of our rallies this year was La Fiesta, followed in the spring by our Junior Prom, The Sand and the Sea, at which Rosemary Collins was crowned Queen. During this year, our students of outstanding scholarship were initiated into the National Honor Society.

At the annual Junior Day exercises, Rosemary Collins accepted the mantle from Dennis Duval, after which Barry Behn received the Harvard Book Award, and Rosemary Murphy, the College Club Book Award. As the time clock showed that this quarter was coming to a close, four of our students were chosen to represent our team in different contests. Ellen Mahoney went to Spain as an A. F. S. Exchange Student, Jean Alden and Bjorg Jensen were chosen for Girls' State, and George Correa and Anthony Plezia were our ambassadors to Boys' State.

We entered the fourth quarter with mixed emotions, realizing that this was the final period of our high school days. We gained a new teammate this year, Rudolf Merten, an exchange student from Austria. We elected Barry Behn, Rosemary Collins, Florence Majocka, and Barry Hagen to manage the team, under the capable supervision of Coach Doris D. Bruce. Two of our outstanding athletes, Jerry Razon and Barry Behn, represented us on the All Bristol County Football and Basketball Teams, respectively. In order to hold the Autumn Frolic, we joined teams with the Juniors, as does every other Senior Class.

To support our team, we sold wrapping paper, and staged "Girls Are Better Than Ever," a successful Senior Play, both financially and theatrically. We discovered that more honors were being bestowed on our teammates this year. Four more scholars were initiated into the Honor Society, Fern Sherman, received the Betty Crocker Homemaker's Award, Ellen Mahoney won the Voice of Democracy Contest, and Rosemary Murphy was given the D. A. R. Good Citizen Award. Although the Senior Prom, the Banquet, and Graduation are all in the future, we are certain that they will be the finishing touches to our rewarding game.

Thus, we have successfully completed these four quarters in our education. As we participate in future games, we shall look back fondly to these halycon days at Fairhaven High School.

Class Prophecy

Letter to Leopold Libel, Editor of the New York Times, from Mike "Scoop" Moriarty, Star Reporter.

THE MAHONEY - HILTON HOTEL

FAIRHAVEN, MASSACHUSETTS

June 11, 1970

Dear Boss:

Landed in this burg this a.m. — awful small town, Fairhaven. Have to give TWA credit for their stewardesses, tho — couple of chicks on our flight from ol' New York, names of Oliver and Valley — WOW!!

Checked in at the Hilton and found out this week-end is the 12th annual reunion of the Class of '58 of Fairhaven High School. Could be a story there, but I'll be too busy with this Olympic Festival to bother. Could let Kathleen or Dana tackle it, tho. Still can't figure why they'd have the Games here!

Got the red-carpet treatment at the hotel; a suite overlooking the river, two French maids, Phyllis and Susanne (!!), and a tour of the joint with Miss Mahoney, the owner and manager. Caught some of the '58 grads practicing in the lounge for a show they're doing tonight. Pete Pelton on sax, Dennis Tripp on trombone, and from New York, Fred Spicer, drums, and Dick Monteiro, clarinet. Some girl, name of Langlois, playing bass — good, too.

They've really rounded up some talent for this shindig, Boss: Patience and Prudence Costa, those singing twins; Robert Comeau, the actor, and three girl hoofers — "Bubbles" Gifford, Gypsy Rose Rychlinski, and an exotic named Veronica. (Nickname's Judy). Miss Mahoney's secretary, Miss Dexter, and her receptionist, Miss Kelley, told me they'd had trouble finding an emcee, but they finally managed to get "Sonny" Asselin, the emcee of that quiz show, "You Bet Your Bongos." Think I'll catch the show; nothing else to do in such a small town.

As soon as the actual Games get under way, I'll send my copy.

P.S. If you call, ask Carol at the switchboard for my room, No. 415.

THE MAHONEY - HILTON HOTEL

FAIRHAVEN, MASSACHUSETTS

June 12, 1970

Dear Boss:

So all right, already! Here are the Games' scores, and a story on the reunion.

Here are the results: The biggest two opponents were Russia and the U. S., of course, as we predicted. The shot-put event was our most spectacular win; Goulet copped that, natch. In women's shot-put, we placed second, Rose taking the honors. Our Urquiola and Harrison both placed at 3:57.9 in the mile, and Rego won the women's relay. In the swimming competition, Long hit for first in the 440, and Murphy took diving honors. There was a Grand Prix race, too, Boss. Hiller in a Jag, Furnans in a Ferrari, and Risdal in a T-Bird, tied for third; Bergeron's Porsche was second, and first was Titcomb, in a Fiat.

Out of appreciation to Fairhaven, the Olympic Foundation asked some former Fairhaven High School athletes to appear and award prizes. Hoppy Lanoue, Big Bob Botelho, Pete Titcomb, and Turk Pasquill, four F. H. S. gridders, Jim "Toe" Lacerda and Paul Richard, two basketball champs, were on hand. The biggest honor, that of carrying the Olympic torch, went to Barry Behn, president of the Class of '58.

After the Games, the town put on a big victory parade, complete with bathing beauties, celebrities, scouts, veterans, and athletes. Leading the parade, of course, were the athletes. Then came Fairhaven veterans — P. Almond, Army; R. Biron, D. Gray, S. Garcia, and T. Garifales, all Air Force men, and one SPAR, a Miss Durrigan. Next was a long line of scouts with Barbara Besse as leader. Sheila Tunstall followed, leading the High School band.

This town may be small, Boss, but it crawls with celebrities. Small-fry stuff, of course, but they were all out in Cadillacs for the parade; the town doctor, fella named Browne, with a couple of his nurses, Rosemary Collins and Pat Wrightington; the president of the local Improvement Association, George Correa; a foreign delegate, Rudolf Merten, from Austria, and a handful of real celebs — Bruce Staples, the novelist who exposed Pride's Corner, Maine; the physics team of Smith and Furhovden from MIT; and the women scientists, Mandeville and Bassett.

Fairhaven has its share of swells, too, Boss — Fern Sherman, the stock market queen, sailed by with her chauffeur, Bartlett; Jane Rothwell, who's in diamonds these days, and her chauffeur, Ronald; Patricia Young, the wealthy actress, and her chauffeur, Paul Nowakoski; the potato chip magnate, Jerry Razon, and his man Martin; and the head of Capitol records, Joe Medeiros, and his man Porte. WELL!

Also among the dignitaries in the parade were the police captains, Tom Carr and Virginia Caton. Oh yeah, and two homecoming government aides, Joan Berube and Mary L. Goulart, their traveling companion, Elizabeth Souza, the IBM executive, and a beautiful lawyer from Philadelphia, Jacqueline Sergeant, and her secretary, Nancy Medeiros.

Last, but by no means least, were those delectable beauty pageant contestants — WOW! In the first convertible, with the judges, Dunn and Purtell, were the winners, Jean Alden and Evelyn Martin; next, "Miss Congeniality", Sandi Burgess, with two lovely blondes, Judy Callahan and Sue Pierce; then two adorable French mademoiselles, Aline Martel and Janice Marotte. It was at this point I literally bumped into the LIFE magazine staff artist, Barry Hagen.

Spotting the PRESS card in my hatband, no doubt, two children's nurses, a Miss Perkins and a Miss Sackman, rushed up to me and insisted that I interview not only them, but their employers as well, the former Joan Sylvia, and the former Carol Olivera of the Class of '58. Then I was introduced to another batch of housewives, the former Misses Phillips, Days, and Barnes. Whew!

Well, Boss, after I managed to escape that bunch, I headed for the hotel, but quick! No rest for the wicked, though — five teachers, all '58, natch, were holding a reunion of their own in the lobby, and they buttonholed me. (I still think Dana or Kathleen could have covered this reunion jazz.) Demanded to be "written up", though, so here goes: Sandra Holmes, Florence Majocka, Ruth Downing, Bjorg Jensen, and Leah Wenzel are all officers in the National Education Association. Brother!

After that, I decided to grab myself a little liquid refreshment, but I ran into a windy bartender, name of Howcroft, in the bar, and an equally gabby cigarette girl, Barbara Mackay, in the lounge. I high-tailed it for my suite, and had to tip two bellboys, Plant and Machado, just to be left alone there. Brad, the boy who brought up the icewater I ordered, spilled it all over me! If I get pneumonia, I'll sue!

As if that weren't enough, Boss, Miss Mahoney, the manager, insisted on showing me the rest of the hotel — a grim prospect, by that time. So, I dutifully toured the entire Hilton, kitchen to penthouse. Met the hatcheck girls, two dolls named Florence and Elsie; the resident physician, Marilyn Lopes, M.D., and her nurse, Diane; the dietician, a Miss Licari; three beauticians, Janice Souza, Gerri Riendeau, and Janet Santos; and Tony the Florist, and his assistant, Bette. When I signed the guest book, I caught the names of ten other reunionites — B. Custodio, C. Edwards, J. Gallop, J. Garcia, C. Graves, B. Heuberger, J. Roderick, P. Romeo, M. Senna, and E. Ventura.

After that melee, I spent the rest of the evening in my room, staring out over the broad Acushnet River. Phew!

THE MAHONEY - HILTON HOTEL
FAIRHAVEN, MASSACHUSETTS

June 14, 1970

Dear Boss:

This is a little postscript on the reunion story. Boss, you have no idea how many Fairhaven High graduates still live and work in Fairhaven; I should think they'd be glad to leave, it's so small. But, still checking the reunion story, I took a drive around town early this morning. Sue Dodge, the dress designer, and her associate, Marlene Sylvia, have a little shop on Main Street. Next door to them is Lynne Oliveira's Slenderella Shoppe, and further down the street is Medeiros' Contracting Company. There's a YWCA, run by Ted Govoni, and a stewardess school operated by Rosemary Jacquel. (Also a trio of bookies, Blackburn, Hubert, and Dulong, and I got 10-1 on the fifth at Santa Anita).

Remember the old Brigantine Yankee? It's docked at the Fort here in Fairhaven, and two former skippers, Gail Spooner and Susan Rowland conduct tours all day. Passed the famous Spagnoli-Morgado stables on Fort Street, too. Beautiful place.

Boss, this newspaper racket has its perils. Got hooked on a radio show at WBSM this morning — "Hiller's Hillbilly Hour", one of those interview shows. He was quizzing three missionaries, J. Mills, C. Monteiro, and L. Gibbs on their recent conversion of pagan Siberia when I arrived. Soooooooo, I just sneaked out the way I got in, headed for the Hilton, grabbed my bags, and took off. I'm hiding out in New Bedford, and I'll be home in good ol' New York just as soon as the New Bedford High School reunion is over.

Class Will

We are gathered together on this solemn occasion to read the last will and testament of the vastly wealthy class of 1958. Although they graduated in rags - glad rags - they were wealthy: wealthy in knowledge, talents, character, and friendships. Yes, that outstanding class has passed on into the three regions of the outerworld - College, Work, and the Armed Services. No more will their shining countenances light up the dim corridors or classrooms; never again will they lead their teams to victory, blow up the chemistry lab, or leave "little black marks" on Larch Avenue with their chariots!

However, the class of '58 boasted generosity, and thus they wish to bestow upon their heirs the following gifts:

1. The magnanimous 1958 HUTTLESTONIAN Staff leaves to next year's editors a pair of blunt scissors and one slightly used bottle of sticky "Elmer's Glu-All"—guaranteed to ruin any paste-up!

2. In order that Barclay Megathlin may not find it necessary to trudge to school with his tuba wrapped around him, Dennis Tripp benevolently bestows upon him his motor scooter.

3. Our puissant Paul Goulet leaves his shot-put record to Tommy Renahan.

4. Richard Pasquill (finally!) leaves Fairhaven High School.

5. Barry Behn trustingly leaves Elaine Stening.

6. Ken "Spider" Lanoue leaves to Richard Holt a copy of his manual, "Ten Easy Lessons on How to Evade Football Practice."

7. To Liz Radcliffe, Dana Greenfield leaves her list of tall girl's shops.

8. We're sorry, but Fred Spicer absolutely refuses to leave his drums. (He does, however, leave to Fairhaven High School a mileage record of 20,000 miles per year.)

9. Bill Purtell bequeaths his wardrobe of crew necks, chinos, and desert boots to any Junior boy who wants to be voted "Best Dressed" in '59.

10. Sandi Burgess leaves a list of short-cuts to the University of Massachusetts to Gale Foster. (The overwhelmingly generous Sandi also leaves her scooter!)

11. To Doug Johnson, Jean Alden bequeaths the title, "Senior who Lives Farthest Out in the Sticks."

12. Steve Browne leaves a well-worn volume of Ibsen's plays to any lazy Junior who needs last-minute book reports.

13. Anthony Plezia leaves his bicycle and hand-signals to a North Fairhaven student who hates to walk to school.

14. Rudi Merten leaves three completely worn-out American brothers.

15. To Mr. Entin, "Breathless-uh" Jimmy Lacerda leaves one pair of basketball sneakers; like new!

16. The first, third, and sixth period chemistry classes wish to leave to Mr. Boyce several colorful hand-painted neckties, of marked originality, to add to his collection.

17. While our class thespian, Armand Asselin, leaves for Broadway, Gung-Ho Gi Dunn leaves Attleboro. (In his jeep, complete with rear speaker.)

18. To Marilyn Gardner, Snookie Downing bequeaths her rumpus room for those traditional Saturday night parties.

19. Pete Pelton leaves to his sister, Sue, his battered, overused slide-rule so that she, too, can become confused in Math 12 class.

20. Pat and Priscilla Costa leave a case of mistaken identity to Janice and Jeanette Washburn.

21. Judy Langlois leaves her bull fiddle to Miss Hastings for her knick-knack shelf.

22. So that Michelle Veilleux may have a beautiful synthetic tan for her Junior Prom, Rosemary Murphy bequeaths to her her sun-lamp.

23. Barry Hagen and Bjorg Jensen leave the main corridor telephone booth to two affectionate Juniors who have second lunch period.

24. Our famed trio of controversial strollers, A. Martin, J. Medeiros, and J. Razon, leave their mellifluous voices and swinging beat to three equally talented Juniors, C. Maxfield, D. Knox, and R. Morrill.

25. Terry Furhovden leaves his early morning dosage of pep pills to Frank Perry so that Frankie won't follow in his drowsy footsteps and search for his car in the cellar instead of the garage!

26. We regret to inform all you healthy Juniors that the Board of Health refuses to allow us to leave to you our nearly exhausted supply of measles, mumps, flu, chicken pox, and lollipops. (The latter was caused by an overdose of homework and rock 'n' roll.)

The Sand and The Sea

On May 3, 1957, amidst the salty atmosphere of fish nets, brightly colored balloon-fish, sea horses, and other nautical decorations, our dreams of our own Junior Prom finally came to reality.

The rustling of net gowns and the flouncing of soft chiffon sounded like the lapping of waves on a sandy beach, as the many couples danced to the music of the "STARDUSTERS."

Chills of excitement ran through the dancers as the band struck up the entrance march for the Queen and her Court. When the doors opened, the six lovely attendants entered. They were: Florence Majocka, Bjorg Jensen, Susan Dodge, Susan Pierce, Jean Alden, and Florence Jenney. Next, carrying the crown of blue delphinium and white chrysanthemums, came last year's queen, Judith Robinson. Wearing a ruffled gown of white net, radiant Rosemary Murphy, the Queen's Lady-In-Waiting, was escorted to the stage by H. Stevens Browne. On the arm of Barry Behn came our Queen, Rosemary Collins, looking very regal in an elegant white chiffon gown with a blue floating panel.

After being crowned, seated on the scallop-shell throne, Miss Collins was presented a bouquet of beautiful red roses.

Our guests were led, by the traditional Grand March, to the refreshment table, where they were served cookies and punch.

At 11:30, our Patrons and Patronesses bade adieu to many jubilant, yet foot-weary dancers. Serving as Patrons and Patronesses were Mr. and Mrs. Flavel M. Gifford, Mr. and Mrs. Chester M. Downing, Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Wood, Mrs. William D. Bruce, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Earl J. Dias, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Lawton, Mr. and Mrs. Phillips A. Noyes, Mr. and Mrs. Cuthbert W. Tunstall, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lynam, and Mr. and Mrs. James F. Murphy.

Junior Day

June 5 was our big day when, donning yellow roses, we marched into the auditorium and took the traditional Senior seats. After the Seniors, looking very scholarly in their caps and gowns, took their places on the stage, our President Rosemary Collins accepted the class mantle from the Senior President, Dennis Duval.

We were entertained by two delightful solos; a trumpet selection by Stephen Drew, and a violin solo by Rosemary Murphy.

Two awards were given to the most outstanding and versatile Junior. Receiving the College Club Book Award was Rosemary Murphy, while to Barry Behn was given the Harvard Book Award.

As we watched the Seniors march in solemn procession off the stage. we realized that it would not be long before we would be donning caps and gowns and following their footsteps into the world.

"Fairhaven High's Senior Class went a long way last night toward quieting forever the idea that high school plays must necessarily be some sort of torture. They had a gay old time with an opus called GIRLS ARE BETTER THAN EVER turning out a production that had pacing, style, and real ability.

"The play is a simple-minded farce telling how a woman-hating young businessman is set straight by a means of a cunning plot hatched by his aunt and a pretty young Ph.D. At the final curtain, woman-hater and Ph.D. are cooing happily at one another, naturally."

These are some of the words taken from the review of our play. This is what our play meant to a critic. Most likely, this is also the opinion of our capacity audience who laughed at our jokes and applauded our performance.

However, as the weeks and months slip by, and the memory of the play is forgotten, or just buried beneath a bundle of other Senior events, the ones who will remember and enjoy the moments of the play always, are the cast; those 10 people who for months memorized lines, slaved at rehearsals, and tried to make a typed script come to life. Yet, as one of these hard working individuals, I can say that it is not the work or bleak moments we'll remember, but it's the many happy hours that we spent together, laughing at Mr. Tunstall's witty jokes and Armand's imitation of Gunsmoke's Chester, or just counting the calories as we consumed peanut butter sandwiches, cookies, frappes and other delicious morsels.

It would be impossible to forget our vacation when we stumbled out of bed at daybreak to arrive at rehearsal fully equipped with radio, food, and coffee. However, by noon the food had somehow dissappeared so that we were forced to scrape together our pennies and go out to lunch. Alas, our appetites overestimated our bankroll, and we became quite despondent as we gazed at the stack of dishes until "Armand, we always knew you were in the play for some purpose!"

Our diligent prompter, Ellen Mahoney, almost became stage bound when Linda nearly became snowbound in Florida!

Everything looked hopeless one day at rehearsal . . . our leading man "Rock" Staples was having trouble with a love scene. However, soon we were all smiling, for Tony stepped in and expertly solved the problem.

Havoc arose one day, when our stalwart superintendent mysteriously disappeared. Presently we discovered a shoe dangling from one of the rear seats. There was Sandi. Sleeping? No, learning her lines!

If you want to hear a director roar, keep missing your cues! But, they were such interesting conversations in the back of the hall, weren't they, Elsie?

We discovered that a sure cure for after rehearsal headaches is a breezy and bumpy ride in Gi's jeep! Even in February!

Our first taste of a live audience was at Assembly when we gave our fellow students a peek at some of the scenes in the play. Miraculously, we lived through it, and even our "Southern Smoocher," Sue Rychlinski, remembered to drawl out her utterances.

Mr. Tunstall threw up his hands in defeat and decided that he was not directing a play, but training a jumble of lunatics when Sue R. and I swaggered into rehearsal sporting red Texan hats and talking in some type of odd Mattapoisett jargon. Yes, prospects of a play were a bit hazy!!

However, finally the big night arrived. Pandemonium raged backstage while the orchestra tuned up out in front; Property girls, Judy Callahan and Fern Sherman, dashed in and out with last minute arrangements, while Stage Managers, David Gray and Ronald Hubert, calmly sketched portraits. Our make-up man and director, Mr. Tunstall, was diligently engaged in trying to make his cast presentable, when Sue Pierce, the usually leveled-headed Aunt Cora, spun in shouting " A dozen beautiful red roses! That's what he sent me!"

Ah, yes, those moments, which seemed like hours then, flew by too swiftly. The capable directions Mr. Tunstall had given us remained with us as we lived on stage for the last time GIRLS ARE BETTER THAN EVER, and as we took our curtain calls I realized that it was not our jokes and crazy times that made our play a success, but it was the long hours of rehearsal, the time we spent learning lines; it was the many people who aided in putting on the production; and it was faith . . . faith in ourselves and our ability.

Flag on N. B. H. S.

In the wee hours of the morning of November 2, 1957, three intrepid Fairhaven High School students managed to accomplish a remarkable feat. This dauntless trio of loyal Fairhavenites succeeded in flying a Fairhaven High School banner from the flagpole which juts out over the facade of New Bedford High School. The above photograph illustrates the sight that greeted early risers in New Bedford on the morning of November 2.

This daring deed was accomplished as a prelude to the Fairhaven-New Bedford game played on the afternoon of November 2 and won 7-0 by Fairhaven on a rain-soaked, muddy field.

The editorial staff of the HUTTLESTONIAN grants this space to the celebration of the successful banner flying because the editors are unanimous in agreeing that such a deed is in the best tradition of wholesome, teen-age fun, executed with imagination and a sense of humor. The photograph depicts the harmless sort of prank that hurts no one, that exerts no malice, and that can provide a few chuckles for inhabitants of both sides of the river.

The members of the Fairhaven High School Chapter of the National Honor Society strive to uphold the ideals of scholarship, leadership, character, and service. The emblem of the Society is the shield and flaming torch, and its colors are blue and flame yellow.

Officers for 1957-1958 are Ellen Mahoney, President; Aline Martel, Vice-President; Lynne Oliveira, Secretary; and Rosemary Murphy, Treasurer. Members initiated in 1957 are Barry Behn, Joan Berube, Barbara Besse, H. Stevens Browne, Judith Callahan, Ruth Downing, Dana Greenfield, Mary Lou Goulart, Marilyn Lopes, and Judith Vohnoutka. In January, 1958, while parents, friends, and classmates of the initiates looked on, new candidates were excepted into the Honor Society in an impressive candlelight ceremony. The initiates were, from the class of 1958, Terje Furhovden, Sandra Holmes, Bjorg Jensen, and Kathleen Radcliffe, and from the class of 1959, Nancy Allua, Raymond Arruda, Jonathan Botelho, William Carruth, Lucille Deschamps, Margaret Fitzgerald, Gale Foster, Jeremy Jackson, Andrea Kucharsky, Judith Makin, Marianne Marques, Patricia Martin, Barclay Megathlin, Alberta Norlander, Nesta Oliveira, Elizabeth Radcliffe, Michelle Veilleux, Marilyn Wightman, Judith Wotton, and Diana Zieba.

The Key Club of Fairhaven High School, sponsored by the New Bedford Kiwanis Club, is one of several thousand such clubs in the country.

Primarily a service club, the Key Club plans many assemblies throughout the year, and annually awards a $100 scholarship. Key Club boys are frequently seen as ushers, bus boys, and guides at various public functions. "Go-to-Church" campaigns are also on the monthly Key Club agenda.

The Kiwanis advisors to the Key Club are Fletcher J. Long and Eliot Mowat, to whom must go much of the credit for the success of the club. Principal Chester M. Downing is Key Club faculty advisor.

The Student Council, because its members are elected by the students, is the best representative of the student body. This year, as in the past, the Council has tried to uphold the standards of Fairhaven High School.

Under the expert guidance of Mrs. Doris D. Bruce, the group sold book covers and sponsored a food sale. During Thanksgiving vacation, a formal dance, Soiree Internationale, held in the Larch Avenue Auditorium, was attended by students of all area high schools. The proceeds of the Soiree will be used to bring A.F.S. Foreign Exchange Students to America in future years.

During the year, two members of the Council, Marilyn Lopes and Rudolf Merten, Austrian Exchange Student, attended the Student Council Convention in Holbrook, Massachusetts.

The Student Council officers this year were Barry N. Behn, President; Rosemary Murphy, Vice-President; and Andrea Kucharsky, Secretary-Treasurer.

Band

This year, as always, the Fairhaven High School Band has put on its usual fine performance, under the very capable supervision of Miss Elizabeth I. Hastings and Mr. Leo Balandyk. During the fall, the Band added to the color of the football season with intricate and precise formations, and enhanced school spirit at rallies. To supplement the Band's instrumentation, a baritone saxophone, an oboe, and a flute were purchased with funds furnished by the Band itself. One of the highlights of the year was the presentation of a band shell to the town.

This year, the Band raised over eight hundred dollars on Tag Day, the highest total ever reached. In January, the Band, en masse, attended a Band Clinic in Fall River, under the direction of Lee Chrisman, conductor of the Boston University Band. March saw all members knee-deep in preparations for the annual "Pops" Concert, which was well worth all their efforts.

May was a busy month, for the Band attended the Southeastern Auditions Festival in North Attleboro, marched in the Memorial Day Parade, and participated in the May Festival. A trip to Boston and the "Pops" Concert in June closed the door on a busy and fruitful year.

Rosemary Murphy '58

Orchestra

The Senior Orchestra is an integral part of the musical activities of Fairhaven High School. The seventy-seven members play under the direction of Mrs. Blanche Moreau.

Traditionally, the orchestra plays for assemblies, the Senior Play, the Southeastern Massachusetts Auditions Festival, and for graduation. For the first time this year, the Fairhaven and Fall River orchestras, under the baton of Professor Francis Findlay from Boston University, have given exchange concerts.

We are proud that nine members were selected in competition to participate in the All-State Orchestra, held in Springfield. Indeed, we are proud of all the students who contribute to the music life of our school.

Ellen M. Mahoney '58

Girls' Glee Club

This year, the Girls' Chorus, one hundred sixteen strong, is well on its way to completing another successful year. Under the able supervision of Mrs. Marguerite A. Johnson, and capable leadership of Sandra Burgess, Diane Cooper, Andrea Kucharsky, and Marilyn Gardner, the girls have sung at the opera, "The Bartered Bride," and will participate in the Fairhaven Choral Concert, and the All-State Auditions Festival in No. Attleboro.

As in previous years, they wish to close the year with a trip to Boston and the "Pops" Concert, which will bring an end to a satisfying and enjoyable season.

If you have ever attended an F.H.S. game, you must have seen seven bright, spirited girls, dressed in blue and white, cheering our team to victory. These girls, under the capable leadership of Ruth Downing, head cheerleader, comprise our cheering squad.

"Snooky" Downing, lone Senior on the '58 squad, is followed by five Juniors, Theresa Castelejo, Donna Holden, Andrea Kucharsky, Judith Rose, and Elaine Stening, and Marjorie Dumas, a Sophomore. Elizabeth Radcliffe, a Junior, has served faithfully as a substitute.

The girls worked diligently throughout the year and attended the annual Cheerleaders' Tournament in the Spring.

Congratulations to our pretty, peppy cheerleaders for a job well done.

Third row: — J. Sylvia, T. Perry, P. Titcomb, P. Bernard, F. Perry, R. Nunes, R. Duarte, J. Dobson, L. Hirst, R. Potkay, J. Conto, R. Beaulieu, E. Smith, E. Lobo.

Sporting an enviable 4-2-2 record, Coach Mel Entin's F.H.S footballers once again proved to be a top grid power in Bristol County in 1957.

Barry Behn, chosen Player of the Week following the Durfee game, ably quarterbacked the Blue; and Jerry Razon, All-Bristol County center, was a tower of strength in the line.

The highlight of the season, of course, was the 7-0 whitewashing of New Bedford, a game played under the most adverse conditions imaginable. Ken Lanoue tallied the lone touchdown.

All in all, it was a very successful season; the only setbacks came at the hands of the vaunted grid forces of Coyle and Wareham High Schools.

The record:

Fairhaven	0	Dartmouth	0
Fairhaven	14	Vocational	7
Fairhaven	7	Attleboro	7
Fairhaven	21	Barnstable	6
Fairhaven	12	Durfee	7
Fairhaven	7	New Bedford	0

After losing four of last year's five starters, Coach Mel Entin's hoop stalwarts came through with a creditable 10-8 record during the '57—'58 season. This year, incidentally, marked Fairhaven's bow in the Bristol County League.

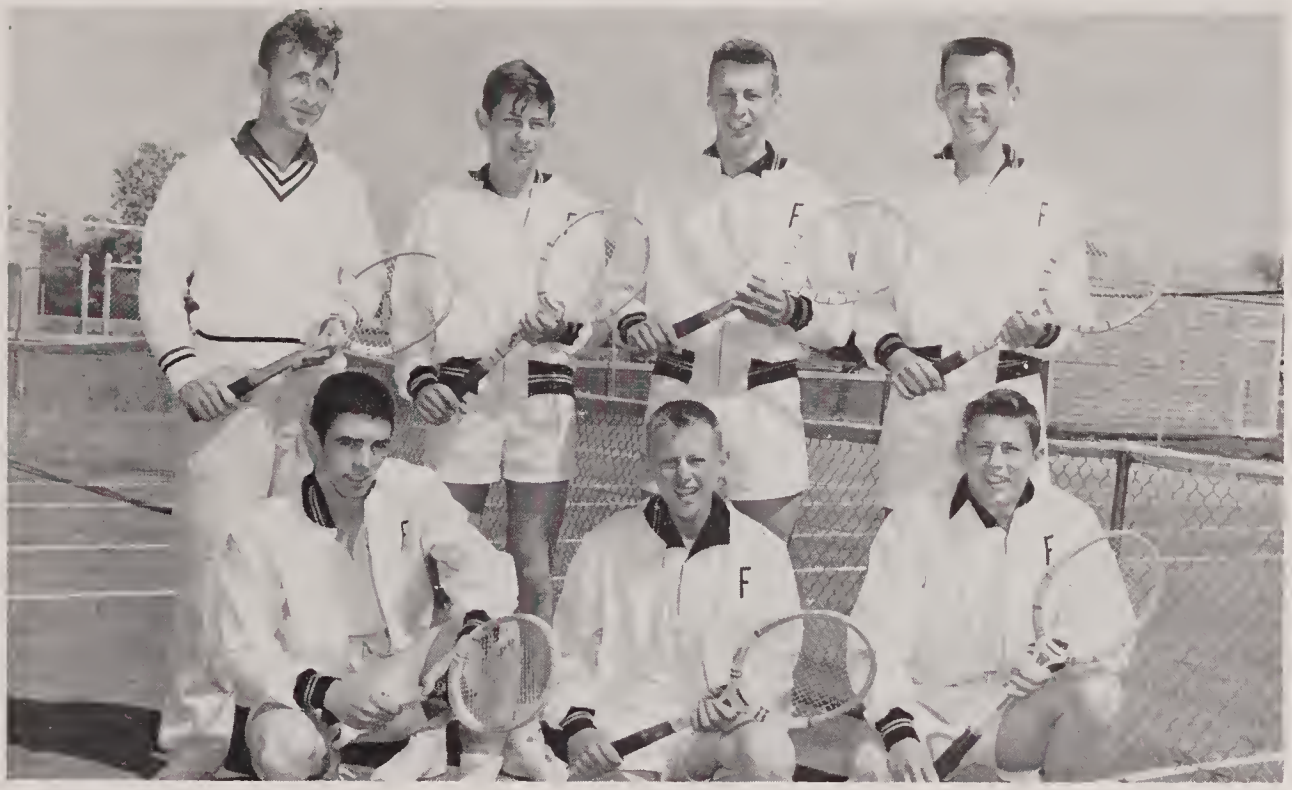

Barry Behn, hampered by injuries much of the season, had a brilliant 27.4 points-per-game average; his top performance was a sparkling 41-point output against North Attleboro. Al Dellecese was also a Blue standout. His rebounding and scoring were important factors in this year's drive.

The record:

Tennis

The tennis season of 1957 was a more successful one than its record shows. Both the coming of the new coach, Ed Twarog, and the experience that the team gained helped to make the season worthwhile. The team was comprised of Barry Behn, captain, Frank Fletcher, Peter Mendell, Kenneth Lanoue, John Radcliffe, and Thomas Mendell. With four of six veterans returning next year it looks as though F.H.S. will again have a formidable tennis team.

The record:

Once again, the F.H.S. track team has made a good name for itself. Because of the great work of Coach Don Gavin and his boys, Fairhaven finished the 1957 track season with an admirable record of three wins, two losses, and a tie for third place in the Bristol County meet. Special recognition should be given to Paul Goulet, who took third place in the shotput event at the State meet, and Bill Robinson, who ran away with first place honors in the mile event at the annual Memorial Day meet with a time of 4:42.

The 1957 baseball season, although not quite so phenomenally successful as in recent years, was still a winning one. The club sported a fine 13-8 record and finished high in the Bristol County League standings. Led by Captain Abbie Teixeira and Danny Santos in the batting department, with John Arruda on the mound, the team displayed much ability on several occasions.

This year, the Girls' basketball team enjoyed one of its most successful seasons to date. After the intramural games were completed, the team was chosen, and the girls worked toward a difficult but well-earned championship.

Coached by Miss Anne Hayes and Miss Mary Elizabeth Tripp, the team won the 1957-58 Narragansett League Championship, after winning ten of its eleven games.

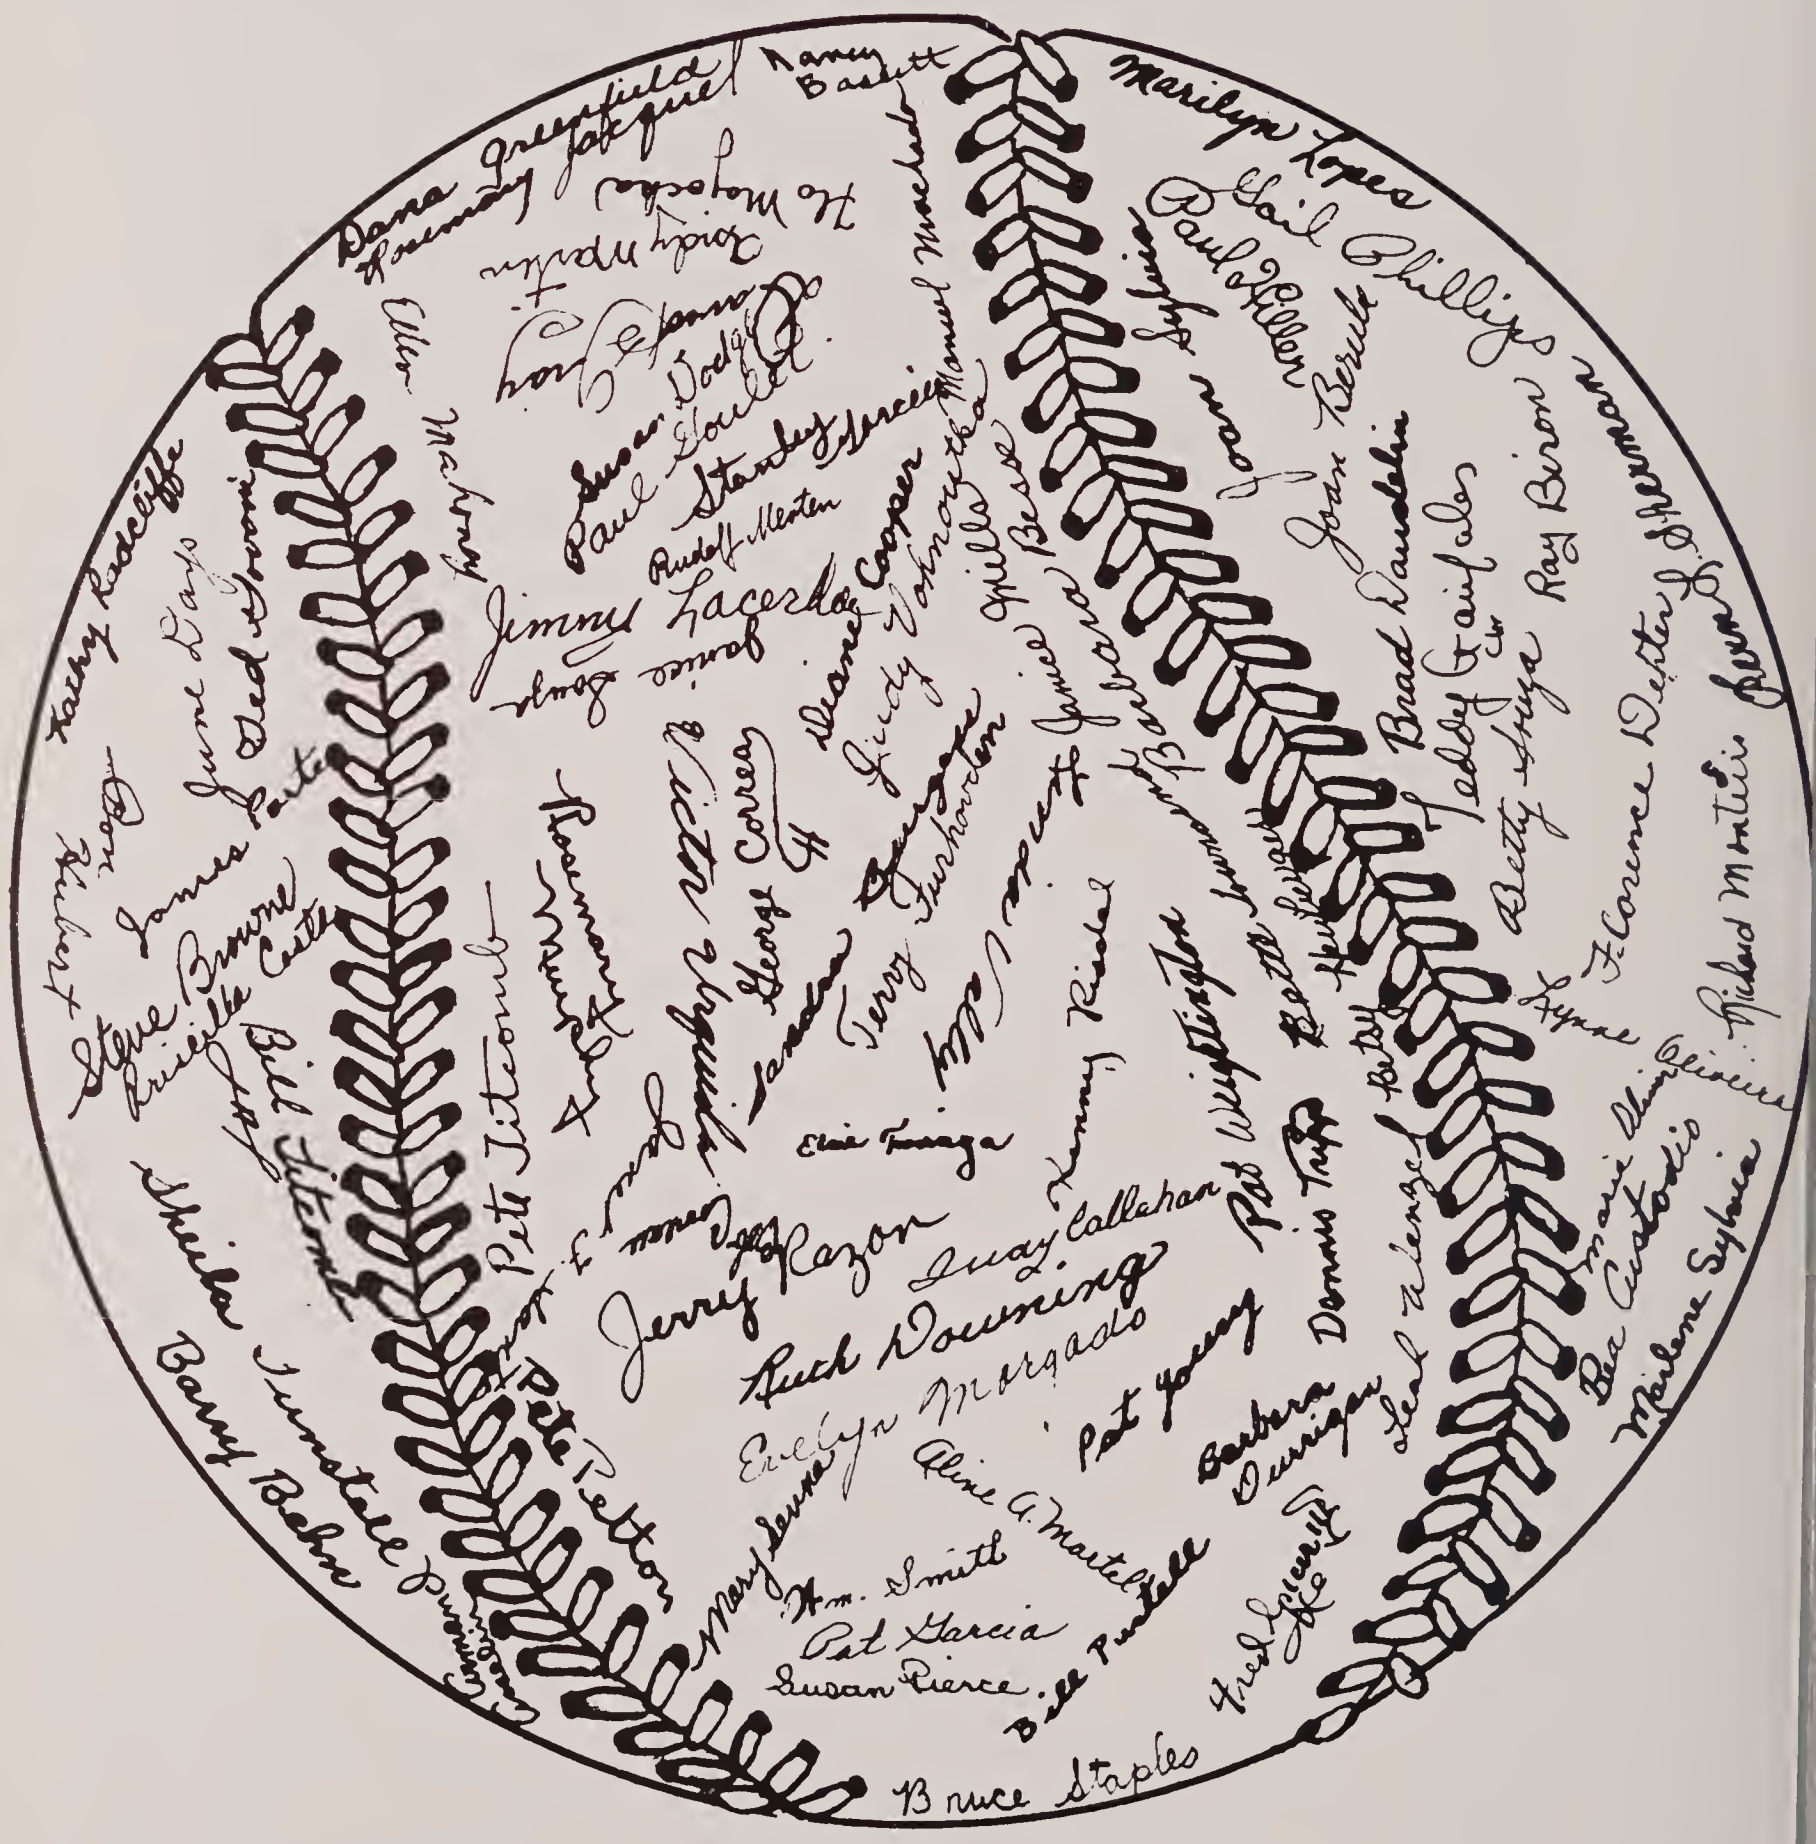

With Sheila Tunstall and Linda Long as co-captains, the forwards, Barbara Besse, Jovina Pina, and Regina Damm, and the guards, Bjorg Jensen, Carol Rego, Judy Luiz, and Alberta Norlander, played with spirit and determination.

The girls certainly achieved a creditable basketball season for F.H.S. The record:

A NOTE OF APPRECIATION

On April 1, 1958, Mr. Flavel M. Gifford announced his retirement after many years of faithful and devoted service as superintendent of schools in Fairhaven. Mr. Gifford has been a good and valued friend to the Class of 1958; the majority of the class knew him well from his frequent visits to Fairhaven schools and from his continuous efforts to strengthen the Fairhaven school system. The Class of 1958 wishes to take this opportunity to wish Mr. Gifford many happy and fruitful years of retirement and to extend best wishes to his successor, Mr. Lynwood P. Harriman.
